KRUEGER HITS THE COUNTY HARD

ARBITRATORS ALLOW HIS FULL CLAIM FOR EXTRAS ON NEW COURTHOUSE

The county of Lincoln came out the "little end" of the horn, in the arbitration of the differences between the Fiscal Court and Contractor E. Krueger as to amount due him for completion of the new courthouse.

The arbitration board, by a vote of 2 to 1, decided practically every point in Krueger's favor, allowing him the balance of about $4,900 he claimed as still due him from the county. The members of the arbitration board were Mr. Ed Ryder, of Mt. Vernon, representing Krueger, Attorney P. M. McRoberts representing the county and contractor Looney, of Danville.

The county officials have about determined to refuse to pay the additional sum, until forced by legal proceedings to do so, though it is said that both parties to the affair agreed to abide finally by the findings of the Board of Arbitration.

IS NEW LAW AN EX POST FACTO ACT?

COURT HOLDS IT IS NOT, AFFECTING CRIMES COMMITTED BEFORE ENACTMENT.

Business has been brisk in circuit court this week. So far but one offender has been "sent up"—John McCormack, a negro who was convicted of shooting another colored man, Joe Adams, in a fracas at Moreland church. He was sentenced to serve one year in the penitentiary. He was sentenced by the jury as the court held that the indeterminate sentence law is not an ex post facto law and there is some doubt as to whether it applies to the trial of cases, where the crime was committed before the act becomes effective.

Robert Henry was acquitted of shooting at Ben Ferrill, at a seventh day adventist meeting at Moreland. Henry was defended by attorney Jeff Hill.

Oble Francis, James Horton and James Denham, of Kings Mountain, were acquitted in their trials on indictments charging gambling. Attorneys Hill and George Florence defended them.

Three indictments against Steve Benedict were dismissed in connection with the shooting affray at Moreland, as it was shown that Benedict was not mixed in it.

The petit jury is considering the case of Chris Hutchison charged with shooting at without wounding John Olickerson. Both are of the Crab Orchard section. Olickerson is alleged to have found Hutchison on his premises at night and was shot at by Hutchison.

Amateur Ball League

ORGANIZED AT DANVILLE AND STANFORD IS OUT IN COLD

Stanford's base ball team died out soon after the high school team had won its 20th straight game and disbanded early in the season, and not enough interest could be aroused to get this city in the Central Kentucky League, which was organized in Danville last Tuesday.

Wood Voorhies, of Harrodsburg, was chosen president, and A. J. Adams, of Hustonville, secretary. The League is composed of Danville, Harrodsburg, Lancaster and Hustonville. The first game will be played next Tuesday, when Harrodsburg will play Lancaster on the Lancaster grounds. Harrodsburg was represented by J. Hal Grimes and Clarence Meisburg; Lancaster by Arthur Joseph; Hustonville by A. J. Adams, Fred Carson, Rowland Bishop, William Stagg and J. C. Dunn, and Danville was represented by Louis Mannini and a number of other enthusiasts. All of the above towns have their teams organized and in good shape.

The schedule for the coming two weeks is as follows:

Aug. 2.—Harrodsburg at Lancaster.
Aug. 4.—Lancaster at Hustonville.
Aug. 5.—Hustonville at Harrodsburg.
Aug. 9.—Danville at Hustonville.
Aug. 10.—Lancaster at Danville.
Aug. 12.—Hustonville at Lancaster.

Lancaster Fair

OPENING PUT OFF BY RAIN—BIG CROWDS PRESENT

The heavy rainstorm of Wednesday caused postponement of the opening of the Lancaster fair until Thursday. The entire program was set up one day, so that Saturday will be the last day.

It rained again Thursday morning, but cleared off before noon and a big crowd was present.

Lincoln county sent over a big delegation of exhibitors as well as the spectators and many more will go Friday and Saturday. Walker and Wray of this city, took ride on Carroll Preston and Sallie Brook Friday and will make any who beat them go some.

John Horton the restauranter, and Harriett Salter, the best cook in Stanford, are furnishing the dinner at the fair grounds, which is proof positive that the Lancaster fair will have the best meals of any served on the circuit this season.

HOW COL. M'ANINCH WAS "GOLD BRICKED"

INTERESTING INCIDENT IN LIFE OF CASEY'S GRAND OLD MAN WHO JUST DIED.

Hustonville, July 28th.—The death of Col. Howe McAninch, of Middleburg, recently has revived the story of his experience with a confidence man ten or twelve years ago. Several items have been published in the daily and local papers pertaining to this, but all are much in error. The bunco man laid his plans adroitly and "Uncle Howe" stepped gracefully in.

He was out on his front steps one morning and was accosted by a stranger, who inquired the way to some point in Tennessee. It seems that Uncle Howe had an uncle living in the region where the traveler was going and Uncle Howe asked him to visit his uncle and on his return to spend the night with him, as he had not heard from him for several years.

In less than one week the man came back spent the night and the plot began to thicken. He informed Uncle Howe that he was the owner of a gold mine somewhere in the mountains of Utah and that he had a specimen in the shape of a gold brick, which was in the hands of his partner "Orey," all Indian who was near Burgin. He claimed to be short in cash and wanted to sell for sufficient funds to further prosecute his operations in the mines.

The next day he and Uncle Howe proceeded to Danville and from there to a thicket on a farm near Burgin where they found "Orey" with the brick. Negotiations were soon concluded and Uncle Howe gave someone in Danville a check on the National Bank at Hustonville for four hundred dollars, got the money and handed it over to the bunco man. He tried to get a larger sum from the Farmers' National Bank at Danville but cashier Geo. W. Welsh refused to furnish it, believing that he was in the hands of sharpers.

After receiving the $400 and seeing that Uncle Howe couldn't raise any more the man disappeared. He later wrote Uncle Howe that the brick was worth only four dollars, the value of the brass it contained and gave him this advice, "small fish should swim near the shore." Uncle Howe was one of the directors of the National Bank here and would occasionally bring along his gold brick when attending a meeting of the board. He would then tell over the story and he enjoyed it as much as any of his hearers. He has often told Dr. Alcorn that the lesson was a valuable one and that this experience had saved him many hundreds of dollars. When a person would call for a loan or someone wanted him to underwrite a note whose solvency was doubtful he would go look at his brick and then decline the accommodation.

He was a fine old man, unsentimental, genteel and a friend to the poor. By hard work he had amassed a good estate, the largest perhaps in Casey county, which will be distributed between his widow and nine heirs. John Wesley of Somerset and Willis Coulter, sons-in-law, have administered upon the estate.

MAKING LIFE SAFER

Everywhere life is being made more safe through the work of Dr. King's New Life Pills in constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, indigestion, liver troubles, kidney diseases and bowel disorders. They're easy, but sure, and perfectly build up the health. 25c at any Drug Store.

HUSTONVILLE TO HAVE FAIR-NEXT YEAR

IF PLANS NOW ON FOOT GO NOT AWRY—GAY PARTY GOES TO MAMMOTH CAVE.

Hustonville, July 28.—Don't forget to attend the protracted meeting at the Christian church beginning Aug. 15th and continuing about two weeks.

Mrs. Jeff Davis Gibbons, Mrs. Tom Gentry and son and Miss Lee Bobbitt, all of Danville, were happy guests of Mrs. S. Bobbitt of Peyton Well last week.

Miss Beulah VanArsdale, of Harrodsburg was here last week the guest of numerous old friends and classmates.

Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Randolph Blain and Miss Sallie Cook who were on the sick list recently are convalescent.

Mrs. James W. Powell delightfully entertained Mrs. Jennie Carpenter's Sunday school class on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Jno. B. Riffe's visitors this week was a charming quartette of Bluegrass beauties, composed of Misses Amanda Alexander, of Lexington, Lela Jones, of Lincoln county, Malen Lee Hughes, now of Birmingham, Ala. and Mrs. Jess Dennison, of New Philadelphia, O.

All things here now favor a Hustonville fair next year the week following Lancaster. This exhibit will be on a much larger scale than any previous effort here and the premium list will be attractive.

The Hustonville Christian church has been especially fortunate in securing Evangelist Luther E. Sellers, minister of the first Christian church Philadelphia to conduct the series of meetings. The meetings will begin Aug. 14th but Mr. Sellers cannot be present until Aug. 16th. Mr. Sellers by natural ability, earnest and steady travel and experience is splendidly equipped for his work.

He has made a fine record. Herbert Monenger says of him: As a teacher, a pastor, a preacher and all around worker, Bro. L. E. Sellers has few equals. He is tireless and true to the book. I take pleasure in speaking of him.

It is desired that there be a community meeting. All members of all churches are urged to attend.

Mr. Wilkinson, of Vincent, Ala., was here Sunday visiting one of the prettiest girls in our city or in the county as to that.

The ball game here Saturday between Hustonville and Moreland was a drawing card and the fans from Moreland feeling sure of winning brought a sack of lemons to present to Hustonville but the game stood 9 to 3 in our favor, and the lemons went back home.

Our South paw twirler, Milton McCormick in the Blue Grass League has pitched 16 games so far this season winning 13 and losing 3.

Dr. J. C. Barker has all kinds of lumber for dwelling and barn building now ready for delivery. Get his prices before placing your order. 44-3t

Be prepared for an agreeable surprise when you draw a prize in the coming art gallery.

For two days, Friday and Saturday Aug. 5th and 6th the Lipps Sisters will inaugurate a grand clearance sale, regardless of cost, of millinery, ladies' dress goods, ladies' skirts, shirt waists, hosiery, notions etc. 44-2

Nearly All For McCreary

NINTH DISTRICT DEMOCRATS NOMINATE FIELDS

W. F. Fields, of Carter county, this week nominated for congress by the democrats of the ninth district beating out Edgar Hager, of Boyd. A great many politicians attended the convention at Carlisle and practically all of them agreed that McCreary is by far the strongest man the democrats can nominate for Governor. His host of friends will rejoice to know that he will make formal announcement of his candidacy within a few days and begin an active campaign in every county in the State.

HOME CURE FOR ECZEMA

Does it not seem strange that so many people suffer year in and year out with eczema? A 25-cent bottle of a simple wash stops the itching and surely convinces any patient. This wash is composed of mild and soothing oil and glycerine, etc., and known as D. D. D. prescription. We do not know how long the D. D. D. laboratories will continue the 25-cent offer, as the remedy is regularly sold only in $1 bottles and has never before been put on the market on any special offer. If you want relief tonight try a bottle at 25c on our personal recommendation. Shugars & Tanner, druggists.

JURIES DO NOT FIX TERM OF IMPRISONMENT

NEW INDETERMINATE SENTENCE LAW EFFECTIVE AT PRESENT TERM OF COURT

In view of the fact that the criminal term of court is on here, much interest is being felt in the operation of the new indeterminate sentence law, passed by the last legislature, in the operation of which the jury trying a felony case, does not fix the term of punishment, but merely decides the question of guilt or innocence. The court, in cases of conviction, pronounces the indeterminate sentence. The text of the new law is as follows:

1. That all of Section 1226, Chapter 36 of the Kentucky Statutes be stricken out and the following substitute therefor so that said section reenacted shall read: That the jury by which an offender, indicted for a felony, is tried, shall ascertain only whether or not said person is guilty of a felony; if guilty the jury shall so state in its verdict; and if the indictment under which he is prosecuted charges an offense consisting of more than one degree, shall find, and in the verdict say, of what degree they find him guilty; after such finding of verdict of the jury, the court trying said offender shall pronounce upon such person an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment in the penitentiary for a term, stating in such sentence and judgment the minimum and maximum time of such imprisonment, the term now or hereafter prescribed by law as the minimum term of imprisonment for the punishment of the offense stated in the verdict as the maximum time of such imprisonment the term now or hereafter prescribed by law as the maximum term of imprisonment for the punishment of such offense, provided, however, in the trial of persons charged with the commission of a felony punishable by death of confinement in the penitentiary for life, if said person is found guilty by the jury it shall also prescribe the punishment in its verdict, and the court trying such offender shall pronounce upon such person a sentence of death or imprisonment for life, as found by the jury. A person sentenced to life imprisonment under the provisions of this act shall be eligible to parole as now or may hereafter be prescribed by law.

The jury by which an offender charged with an offense is tried, or, if a jury trying a person indicted for a felony shall find such person guilty of a misdemeanor, the jury shall fix by its verdict the punishment to be inflicted within the period or amount prescribed by law.

Persons sentenced to punishment by confinement in the penitentiary shall be kept at hard labor; and in cases where the punishment is a fine or imprisonment in the county jail, or both, the imprisonment shall be by close confinement in the jail of the county where the trial was had, unless otherwise provided; and the prisoner shall also be confined in the jail until the fine and costs are paid, unless otherwise provided.

2. All acts and parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed. Approved March 7, 1910.

New Principal

ELECTED FOR KINGS MOUNTAIN GRADED SCHOOL

Kings Mountain July 28.—The trustees of Kings Mountain Graded School elected Mr. W. D. Quarles, of Carter county as principal, Mr. Irvin who had been previously elected, resigning to accept a position at Germantown.

Rev. J. G. Livingston filled his appointment here Sunday.

Sam Rigney wife and boys, of Somerset, visited Mr. Henry Leach.

Mrs. D. Baxter and little girl, of Eubanks, visited her father here, Mr. C. Brown.

Mr. Dean Gooch and family, of Eubanks, visited relatives here.

Mr. J. B. McKee has gone to Georgia to visit his sister and eat peaches. Born, to the wife of Moreland Smith a boy.

Mrs. J. W. Thompson and father Mr. Dunn visited relatives in Grant county.

A WRETCHED MISTAKE.

To endure the itching, painful distress of piles. There's no need to. Liston's "I suffered much from piles," writes Will A. Marsh, of Silver City, N. C. "I got a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve and was soon cured." Burns, boils, ulcers, fever sores, eczema, cuts, chapped hands, chilblains vanish before it. 25c at Penny's Drug Store.

Is Booze Being Sold?

MIDDLEBURG PEOPLE SAID TO BE AROUSED ON SUBJECT.

Middleburg July 28.

The widow Biggs, the aged mother of James Biggs died at Yosemite Saturday, and was buried at Green river church Sunday afternoon after funeral services by Eld. Joseph Montgomery.

Farmers whose crops were seriously flooded two weeks ago, would be glad to have a refreshing shower now. The ground is getting somewhat dry.

A warrant of arrest was sworn out last week for one Rufus Maynard, charging him with using abusive language to Roscoe Carman. The parties live in the Walltown section in the eastern part of the county.

A. H. Royalty sold a span of horses to a Wayne county party for $375. He is now scouring the country round about in search of another span.

Several crops of tobacco in this section have abandoned on the healthy growth of weeds that took possession of them during the late wet spell.

Jason Coffey and three clerks were engaged three days last week taking an inventory of his stock of goods at Yosemite. Jason is a fine business man, and always knows how he is running.

Nearly all the schools of this county opened Monday. All the teachers of this part of the country got schools which speak well for us. Miss Lulu Adams made her calling and election sure at Grove where she taught last year. Miss Bettie Royalty is teaching her third term at Haynes. Ed. Wesley his second at Valley Oak, and Lansing Lanham is teaching the Richards School in Lincoln.

Mrs. A. R. Scott, of Sedalia, Mo., is with her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Estes. Miss Mary Bryant, Pearl Godsey, Etta Watkins, and Sadie Lawhorn, attended the foot washing services at Trace Fork church Sunday. James Randolph has returned from Lebanon, O., where he has been attending school. Elsie Gidberry has secured a position in the graded school at Liberty. Judge M. L. Sharpe was here last week selling goods for Shelby and Sweeney at Junction City.

It is thought that whisky is being sold in this vicinity and a certain notorious character is being watched. It has long since developed that our people would not tolerate the sale of whisky and if the "Passmore proceedings" are not re-enacted before many moons there is nothing in the signs of times. Legal steps have and are still being taken to apprehend the guilty party, but he is being backed up by men of his ilk, and thus far efforts have been futile.

Mother In Israel

PASSES TO WELL, EARNED REWARD AFTER USEFUL LIFE

Mrs. Finy A. Combest, died at her home at Phil Casey county, Saturday July 23rd. The end came peacefully after an illness of three weeks with typhoid fever. She was born Feb. 17, 1869, and was the fourth of the seven children of S. T. and C. Emily Carson. She was a sister of the late late James B. Carson who died Aug. 22 1909. The surviving children are J. R. Carson and Mrs. Kate Cundiff, of Phil. The deceased was married March 11th, 1886, to F. W. Combest, who died July 21st, 1892. She was a faithful member of the Christian church, having confessed the Savior more than 18 years ago. Besides the sister and brother she leaves an only daughter and mother to mourn the loss of a devoted mother and loving daughter. A host of friends and relatives whose sympathy goes out to the bereaved family.

Four Baptized

IN CREEK SUNDAY AT END OF ROWLAND REVIVAL.

Rev. J. T. Hoskins baptized four converts in the Creek at Rowland Sunday afternoon. The meeting there conducted by Rev. A. F. Hallbach has closed with good results. A large crowd saw the ordinance performed. Union services of all the Stanford churches were held at Presbyterian church Sunday.

Rev. J. J. Dickey preached a very strong sermon on Christian unity.

The social held by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Baptist church last Thursday was a great success. About $25 was realized, which will be used for church improvements.

NEW LAW INVOKED TO ESCAPE JURY SERVICE

J. W. ROUT AND OTHERS GET OFF BUT SAY IT A BAD LAW. AFTER ALL.

So far as known the first time the Hubble-Shanka law exempting men who are 60 years old or over from jury service has been invoked in the State since its enactment by the last legislature was last Monday at the beginning of the special term of the Lincoln circuit court now in session here. Col. John W. Rout, of this city, who travels for the Martin-Voolfolk wholesale grocery company, of Lexington was drawn as a jurymen, but his business is very exacting, so endeavored to beg off. He had no valid excuse, however, and was finally forced to plead that he was over 60 years of age and exempt under the new law. He was excused. Several other jurymen also were excused on this ground.

Col. Rout, the court and the other exempted veniremen, all say, however that the law is a very bad one, for the reason that a man does not attain his ripe reasoning powers until he reaches the age of 60.

Mail Box Robbed

JUST OVER BOYLE LINE "ABE" WRITES FROM NEW BASE.

Willow Grove Schoolhouse, July 28.

Public school will begin here Aug. 1st with Miss Bessie Gose as teacher.

Walter Arvitt, son of J. R. Arvitt, who was operated on last week for appendicitis, is much improved at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sutton, of Preachersville were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Thompson last week.

Jack Hester and son, Allen, of Paint Lick, were with Mr. and Mrs. John Hester.

Mrs. Joel Thompson and three children will spend some time with her mother, Mrs. Garner on Cedar Creek, near Crab Orchard.

Mr. W. L. Dawson, the popular carrier on Route No. 2 Stanford, tells us that his horse shoe still brings him good luck. The tree was cut down in which it was hanging last spring, and now he has it hanging in a better place.

Mr. Virgil Roberts still goes to Preachersville often. Any attractions there? Yes indeed!

The farmers are trying to get their crops out of a bad fix.

Sunday school convenes here every Sabbath afternoon at half past three. Mr. J. R. Arvitt is superintendent.

A mail box was robbed in this vicinity last week and if the miscreant is apprehended will be severely dealt with.

Your correspondent who has litted a few simple jottings from elsewhere, will for the rest of the year send a few lines from this locality. We arrived here last week and we spend the summer with a good man here and learn farming. God never made a finer country than our own Kentucky and none finer in Kentucky than the county between Hustonville and Stanford, Danville and Lancaster. The farms are ranches in size and are large enough to make six or more farms each.

For a whole week we did not see a copy of the I. J., and can truly say we felt like a shipwrecked mariner marooned on a desert island of a boundless sea. The I. J. should be as staple as bread and butter in the home.

"ABE."

McKinney.

Well we are on deck again after an absence of a couple of weeks and everything is moving along the same as usual in our little town and every body is busy and the weather all last week was perfect for the farmers to get in their work in their crops, we had a fine rain Saturday afternoon.

The band was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Beck last Monday night and everyone had a good time.

Mrs. Harry Jacobs and daughter Adn are at the Graysville, Tenn. Sanitarium where Mrs. Jacobs is taking treatment.

Mr. J. S. Murphy, has bought him an automobile and there will be others to get their machines soon.

Mr. James Dye will leave for St. Louis soon to make his future home and he hate to lose him and hope he will have good luck in his new location.

Mr. Harry Jacobs, the monument man, was in Danville several days last week and went back yesterday to be there all the week.

The candidacy of Woodson May, of Somerset, for the next democratic nomination for clerk of the court of appeals, seems to be meeting with much favor. The Somerset Times says that nearly every county in the Eleventh district has voluntarily pledged him its support, while democrats from all sections of the State are asking him to make the race. Mr. May has not as yet made any formal announcement, but his closest friends say that at the proper time he will do so. Mr. May is the State Central Committeeman from the Eleventh district, and is well known all over the district. His wife was Miss Lucy McKee, daughter of Hon. J. C. McKee, a first cousin of Col. R. M. Jackson, the old democratic war horse, and is extensively related in almost every county in Eastern Kentucky.

It is not believed that there will be any other candidate in the Eleventh time and that the district will line up solidly behind Mr. May. With McCreary at the head, and good, clean men on the ticket, there will certainly be one of those old time majorities we read about, rolled up for democracy again in Kentucky.

Powers and Edwards are having a dog and cat time of it for the republican nomination for congress in the Eleventh district. All the republican newspapers have taken sides and everyone is telling everything he knows on the other fellow. The Edwards organs are doing everything but come out and in so many words say that Powers is guilty of the Goebel assassination, while Powers' friends are hinting at certain incidents said to effect the Congressman's morality. From what we can hear up a tree, it looks like Powers is gaining mighty fast. He is said to be drawing tremendous crowds, while the enthusiasm for Edwards seems to be lacking. If Powers wins a strong democrat or independent, ought to be able to run him a great race, if not beat him.

Prominent Man Dead

COL. DAVE DUNN PASSES AWAY
IN DANVILLE.

Col. David Dunn, aged 76 years, one of the most prominent men of Boyle county, died at his home in Danville Thursday night after a long illness. He was the father of Mrs. M. S. Baughman, Mrs. J. W. Baughman, of Lincoln county, Col. I. W. Dunn and Misses Cyrena and Mary Dunn, of Danville, all of whom survive him and were at his bedside when the end came.

SURPRISE THEIR FRIENDS

There will be no preaching at the Baptist church Sunday. Pastor Hoskins will attend the meeting of the ministers and deacons and Sunday school union of the South Kentucky Association at the Pleasant Point Baptist church.

No Man is Stronger Than His Stomach

A strong man is strong all over. No man can be strong who is suffering from weak stomach with its consequent indigestion, or from some other disease of the stomach and its associated organs, which impairs digestion and nutrition. For when the stomach is weak or diseased there is a loss of the nutrition contained in food, which is the source of all physical strength. When a man "doesn't feel just right," when he doesn't sleep well, has an uncomfortable feeling in the stomach after eating, is languid, nervous, irritable and despondent, he is losing the nutrition needed to make strength.

Such a man should use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enriches the blood, invigorates the liver, strengthens the kidneys, nourishes the nerves, and so gives health and strength to the whole body.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of known composition, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

THE TEST OF MERIT

Stanford People are Given Convincing Proof.

Dawson Barnett, Rowland Street, Stanford, Ky., says: "Some time ago I had a severe fall and this, together with the jarring to which I am subject in my work, brought on kidney trouble. For several days I could hardly get about on account of the pains in my back. I also noticed that the passages of the kidney secretions were very irregular especially at night. I decided to cure this trouble before it became chronic and as I knew Doan's Kidney Pills to be good for such complaints, I procured a box at Shugart & Tanner's Drug Store. Before I had finished the contents, I was entirely cured and I have had no kidney trouble since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

TACKY PARTY.

The management of the Crab Orchard Springs regaled its guests with a tacky party a few nights ago. The costumes were quaint and in many cases very amusing. Manager Willis is making it pleasant for his guests and he and Mrs. Willis always enter into the fun and always succeed in making it delightful for their guests. Among those who were present were: Miss Juliett Ewing, Mr. Mannie Dillon, Miss Ida Reinhardt, Mr. Lucien Dunn, Mr. Bragg Thompson, Miss Goodie Redd, Miss Bessie Holmes, Charles Holman.

MORGAN'S MEN REUNION.

Maj. H. M. Taylor, who is now on the staff of Col. W. B. Haldeman, of the United Confederate Veterans of Kentucky, and Col. Green R. Keller, of Carlisle, are completing arrangements for the reunion of Gen. John H. Morgan's men, which will be held on the Parks Hill assembly grounds at Parks Hill, Nicholas county, Aug. 16 and 17. The greatest reunion in the history of the Morgan's Men Association is expected. Members of the grphan brigade and other famous confederate commands have been invited to participate and a great time for the old soldiers who wore the gray is being prepared for. The officers of the organization are: Gen. B. W. Duke, of Louisville, president; J. W. Bowles, of Louisville, first vice president; Judge M. C. Saufley, of Stanford, second vice president; Maj. O. S. Tenney, of Lexington, third vice president; Green R. Keller, of Carlisle secretary; the Rev. Dr. E. O. Guernant, of Wilmore, (chaplain; L. E. Young, of Lexington, Commissary.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—A young woman, cast ashore on a lonely island, finds a solitary inhabitant, a young white man, dressed like a savage, and not able to speak in any known language.

CHAPTER II.—She decides to educate him. She finds him in an attitude of prayer, babbling an incoherent jargon.

CHAPTER III.—She finds a human skeleton and the skeleton of a dog. She finds a Bible and a silver box bearing the name John Russell Charnock, with a date a year before her landing.

CHAPTER IV.—She concludes that her companion is an American and that he was cast ashore on the island when a child. Near the skeletons she finds two woman's rings and a dog collar.

CHAPTER V.—One of the rings bears an inscription "J. R. C. to M. P. T. Sept. 10, 1893."

CHAPTER VI.—Katharine Brandon was a highly specialized product of one of the greatest universities. Her writings on the sex problem had attracted wide attention. The son of a multi-millionaire became infatuated with her, and she acceded to his proposition to put her theories in practice. With no other ceremony than a hand-clasp they went away together. A few days on his yacht revealed to her that the man only professed lofty ideals to possess her.

CHAPTER VII.—Katharine discovers that the man is married. While drunk he attempts to kiss her. She knocks him down and leaves him unconscious on the cabin floor. She escapes in the darkness, in a gasoline launch.

She lay directly in the wake of the yacht, and the launch was pitched up and down by the waves made by the rapidly moving ship with a violence of motion that was sickening. There were a pair of oars in the boat, but she did not break them out. She just drew herself down in the stern sheets and lay there waiting. She knew that the clatter of the motor could be heard a long distance in so still a night and over so still a sea, and therefore, although her impulse was to start it at once, she restrained herself and waited, watching the yacht rapidly disappear. She could mark her course easily by the light from that cabin window. Her ear was keen and she listened until she could no longer detect the beat and throb of the steamer's engines. Then she rose and started the motor.

The boat was provided with a compass, and although she could see no star, she was able to set a course which was directly at right angles to the course of the yacht. She realized, or at least she thought so, that she would be pursued. She believed that the yacht would retrace its course. She decided that those aboard her would reason that she would endeavor to put as much distance as possible

SAVED AT DEATH'S DOOR

The door of death seemed ready to open for Murray W. Ayers, of Transit Bridge, N. Y., when his life was wonderfully saved. "I was in a dreadful condition," he writes, "my skin was almost yellow; eyes sunken; tongue coated; emaciated from losing 40 pounds, growing weaker daily. Virulent liver trouble pulling me down to death in spite of doctors. Then that inimitable medicine—Electric Bitters—cured me. I regained the 40 pounds lost and now am well and strong." For all stomach, liver and kidney troubles they're supreme. 50c at Pen-

Free Sample For Baby's Ills

Something can and must be done for the puny, crying baby, for the child that refuses to eat and is restless in his sleep. And since the basis of all health is the proper working of the digestive organs, look first to the condition of the stomach and bowels.

A child should have two full and free movements of the bowels a day. This emptying of the bowels is very important, as with it comes a clear head, a lightness of step, good appetite and sound sleep. But it is equally important to know what to give the child in the emergency of constipation and indigestion. Cathartics are too strong and salts and other purgatives are not only too strong, but the child refuses them because of their bad taste. Have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It is a liquid tonic that families have been using for a quarter of a century. It is mild, pleasant-tasting and promptly effective. It is good for you as well as the child, but there is nothing better to be found for children. They like its taste—you will not have to force them to take it.

First of all, if you have not yet used it, Dr. Caldwell would like to send you a sample bottle free of charge. In this way you can try it before buying. Later, when convinced of its merits, you can get it of your druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, just as thousands of other families are doing. The family of Mr. D. W. Spangler of Strattonville, Pa., as well as that of Mr. A. F. Johnson of Walnut Grove, Tenn., started with it in that way and now write that it is their one family necessity next to food itself. If you are unfortunate enough to have a sickly child, one given to constipation and indigestion, you should send for a free sample of this remedy.

Dr. Caldwell personally will be pleased to give you any information you may desire for yourself or family pertaining to the stomach, liver or bowels absolutely free of charge. Explain your case in a letter and he will reply to you in detail. For the free sample simply send your name and address on a postal card or otherwise. For either request the doctor's address is Dr. W. B. Caldwell, R. 300 Caldwell Building, Monticello, Ill.

between herself and the yacht, and therefore she would sail straight away from it. Consequently, she went broad off to starboard at right angles to the other course. The gasoline tanks were both full. Inasmuch as the boat had been designed for extended cruising in shallow waters, there was enough fuel to keep the motor going for over 30 hours at full speed. The motor was capable of developing at least ten knots per hour. By the same time tomorrow night she would be 240 miles away from the present spot. The yacht was going 12 knots an hour. Her escape would probably not be discovered for ten hours. By that time the yacht would be 120 miles away. They would be 150 miles apart by morning, measured on the hypotenuse, and by night, who could tell? At any rate, she had now done all that she could.

Her condition was desperate; her prospects gloomy beyond expression. She was alone in a small power boat which would be helpless, the sport of wind and waves, after perhaps 30 hours. That boat was alone in the great expanse of the Pacific ocean. Somewhere about there were islands probably. Indeed, on the charts those seas were dotted with points of land, but they were small, inconsiderable, uninhabited, unknown. In that little boat she might pass close by many of them without seeing them. She had provisions, such as they were, and water sufficient perhaps for a week or ten days. After that unless she landed somewhere she would drift on until she starved and died. If a storm came, the launch probably would not survive it. Her chances of escape, in any event, were worse than problematical. The end was almost certain.

But she was happy. The first ray of happiness which had entered her soul since the beginning of the great awakening, which had culminated in the frightful scene of the night, illumined her being. As she sat in the stern sheets, her hand on the steering wheel, listening to the steady drumming of the motor, seeing the black water broken into foam by the boat's bows flash by her, keeping the launch steady on her course by the aid of the compass needle, her eyes turned ever and anon to the fast diminishing point of light which marked the rapidly disappearing yacht, and she realized that she was free. She had hurled out of her path—and how she exulted in her own prowess! It was something of a relief to her soul for the wretched humiliations which had been heaped upon it—she had hurled out of her path and stricken down as any other animal might have done him who had brought her to this awful pass. She was away from him, free from him. She was once more, so far as wind and wave allowed, the master of her fate, the mistress of her destiny.

She was glad in her heart, too, that there were to be no physical consequences from her brief alliance. She did not realize that there were to be other consequences which not even all the water of the seas over which she floated could wash out. There was a strange elation in her soul. She felt as if in some way she had vindicated her right to be. There was something yet in her philosophy and did opportunity serve, could she get free from the dangers that encompassed her, she vowed that she would prove it.

All night long she stayed awake, keeping the launch in her course. When morning broke she was absolutely alone upon the ocean. Standing erect upon a seat, from her low vantage point she could see nothing but smoothly undulating sea. She breakfasted sparingly from her scanty stores and resumed her post at the wheel. She was tired and sleepy, but while the little engine was alive she could not leave it to its own devices. She must hold on her chosen course as long as the motive power remained. She could not lose a moment while that motor throbbed and beat. She must be alive with it. There would be time to sleep when it was exhausted. She must put as many leagues between her and pursuit by holding the direct course as long as was possible.

And so she sat there grimly, hands clutching the wheel through the long day and through the longer night and well into the following morning. It must have been half past ten on the morning of the second day before the motor stopped. The silence, after the ceaseless drumming of a night, a long day, a longer night and a still longer morning, struck her with the same strange sense of shock. She calculated that the motor had been running for 38 hours and that she had gone 380 miles at least on her course. She had seen nothing whatever of the yacht.

The chances that it would pick her up, even if it came about and cruised for her, a lonely speck in the ocean, were millions to nothing. At any rate, she had done all she could. Her philosophy for once stood her in good stead. There was nothing more to be done. She was dead for want of sleep. The sky had been slightly overcast since she had left the yacht, but there had been no storm and weather conditions looked just as they had and seemed to be permanent.

Taking the precaution to examine the gasoline tanks and finding that indeed they had been drained of the last drop, she carefully closed and locked them, thereby assuring her salvation, and spreading the boat cloak in the stern sheets with her bag for a pillow and her straw hat tied over her face to shield it from the sun, she instantly dropped to sleep.

CHAPTER VIII.

Cast Up by the Sea.

Day was just breaking again when the woman awoke. Reference to her watch which she had taken the precaution to wind just before she retired disclosed the fact that it was four o'clock in the morning. She had slept unbrokenly since 11 o'clock the morning before. Her sleep had been a stupor of utter and complete exhaustion. Added to the tremendous physical strain of keeping awake and attending to the duty to which she had enforced herself had been the further strain of the terrible events on the night in which she left the yacht, and the apprehension of pursuit which had been continually with her. Her first motion, indeed, was to rise to her feet and scan the horizon. With relief indescribable her scrutiny discovered nothing. She was still alone. Neither the yacht nor any other vessel nor any smallest speck of land was silhouetted against the circling sky line.

She sat in the boat musing a long time and then woke to the fact that she was hungry. Again she satisfied her appetite sparingly from her scanty and rapidly diminishing store of food and drink, and then putting the past resolutely behind her, hoping and perhaps fancying by some exercise of her will power finally she could put it behind her forever, she gave serious thought to her condition.

She realized at last that she in the hands—another would have said of God! she said of chance. The fact that she was so helpless; that all her learning and all her training, and all her skill and all her power were of no avail, made the situation the more galling. Was there nothing that she could do? She reflected deeply and as she did so the breeze sprang up. She judged that the period during which she had slept had been calm and still. Any violent rocking of the boat would have awakened her. Indeed, she felt literally cramped and stiff from having lain so long on the hard floor, which only the boat cloak, thick and heavy, made a tolerable bed.

The coming of the breeze stimulated her imagination. It was a gentle breeze. She noticed that it blew from the direction whence she had come by her compass course. If she only had a sail of some kind the boat would be driven along. She must move somewhere. She had heard of ocean currents and drift but she doubted whether the boat was moving, at least sufficiently fast or in any definite direction to make any difference. Unless she got somewhere, she would slowly starve and die just where she was. She stepped forward in the boat and examined the oars. There was a sort of a deck forward over the gasoline tanks. She thought that she might make shift with the remains of the painter, of which she had a good length, to fasten one of the oars in an upright position against it. There were bolts and rings of various sorts on this little deck. She could step the handle of the oar between cleats or ribs at the bottom. At least she would try.

Her training had not been manual, but she was bright enough to supplement her lack of skill and after some hours of hard work she actually got one oar in an upright position and securely lashed. Out of the heavy cloak—more a huge circular than anything else—she improvised a sail with the other oar as a boom thrust across the boat between the mast and the little forward deck. The coat had been heavily braided. She ripped the silk braid from the edge, cut off the hood of the cloak and managed a triangular sail lashed by the silk braid to mast and boom.

The boom was immobile and the only way she could sail was straight before the wind. If the wind shifted, she would shift with it. She had some slight control over the vessel with the helm, but that was all. It was noon when she finished her labors, but she was more than satisfied with what she had accomplished, for the cloak was big enough to give an appreciable way to the boat. She guessed it might be three or four knots an hour. That would be nearly 100 miles a day. She could ask out her provisions and water for five or six days longer and she could go without for two or three days after the last drop of morsel had vanished. Perhaps she might run down a habitable island in that time. Possibly, although this possibility was more faint than the other, she might be seen by some vessel and picked up. At any rate, all she could do was done.

She felt better, too, because she had made a human contribution to the determination of her fate. She was no longer absolutely at the play of chance. For five days she sailed steadily on, the breeze remaining even and holding unvaryingly true for that period. She learned the trick of lashing the wheel at night and so was able to take as much rest as her tired, worn and racked body permitted in the confinement of the little boat.

She had abundance of time for thought. Time was when she had revelled in such opportunities, but there was less enjoyment in the chances afforded her now. That she who had lived in the high realm of speculation should suddenly become a woman of action, fighting for life, struck her as a strange thing. Incredibly the conditions of her present existence modified her philosophy. It seemed different, a smaller thing. She was less sure and confident of herself alone in the great immensity than in the crowded city. There were no applauding thousands. She breathed no air of adulation. She was alone with her soul. The man who is alone is always face to face with God, though his eyes may be hidden so that he cannot see the Divine. It was so with this woman.

Never had she so craved other companionship. She would have been happy if she could have believed that there was a God, for had there been a God she would not have felt so deserted. So she fought on against her soul and her circumstances—a losing battle.

The sixth day opened dark and gloomy. The wind had risen during the night. The day broke heavily overcast. Even to her inexperience she could realize that a storm was at hand. She had seen nothing during the period; that is, nothing of which she could avail herself. Twice, once to starboard and another time to port, she had passed low lying islands, dim on the horizon. She had no way of checking the boat or of changing its course to run down either of them. She had to go on just as she was. She realized that she could never land unless she were driven directly upon some island that might lie in her course. She knew, too, that the chances that might happen were very remote. She had daily diminished the portion of food and drink she allotted to herself. She had husbanded everything with the utmost care. On the sixth day they were gone. She awoke with a frightful craving which intensified as the day drew on.

She was thankful for one thing that the sun was veiled, although she heat in the humid, heavy, overcast air was something almost unbearable. Under the freshening breeze the boat went much more swiftly than heretofore. She had that satisfaction, but she had the apprehension that if the wind grew any stronger her sail, serviceable as it had proved and stout as it was, would be torn to pieces. The silk braid had done splendid service, but she marked that it was now strained to the breaking point. Again the helplessness of her position came upon her. She could not take down the sail. In the first place she was afraid to leave the helm and in the second place she realized that if she started to furl it she could only do it by cutting the lashing and at the first cut the whole thing would blow away. So she held on. There was nothing else to do.

The night fell in a burst of rain which was most grateful to her, but which was a forecast of a fiercer blow, and at midnight the hurricane broke in full force upon the little boat. The first blast tore the sail from the lashings. By a lightning flash she caught a glimpse of it for a second, whirled away like a great bird. For some reason, perhaps because one or two shreds of cloth still clung to the mast, and perhaps because the broad blade of the oar offered some surface for the thrust of the wind, she was able by the exercise of constant vigilance and all the strength of which she was capable, to keep the boat before the wind. Hitherto she had had no idea of the violence of the wave motion. It was with difficulty that she kept herself from being dashed to pieces against the sides or hurled overboard in the mad whirling and plunging to which the launch was suddenly subjected. It was caught up by one wave after another and driven on for hours. She could not tell how long. She lost all consciousness of time and of everything else except that she must cling to the helm. The boat was still hurled forward. One great wave after another would seize her, uplift her and bear her on. The strain upon her arms was terrific. She locked her teeth and hung on, breathless, exhausted, yet determined.

But there was a limit to her powers and she felt that it had been reached. Yet she did not deliberately let go. One final and terrific heave jerked her away from the wheel. She fell sprawling in the bottom of the boat, but had sense enough to lock her hands around a thwart and lie there. The launch broached to in an instant. She was turned broadside to the waves. Fortunately she did not capsize instantly and the next breaker filled her. She lay, her gunwales flush with the water. Her motion was still violent, but less jerky. She was swept ever onward by the vast undulations. The indomitable woman clinging to the thwart managed to keep her head out of the water. She realized that that was the end and yet while she had a remnant of strength, while she could draw a flickering breath, she would not give up. The boat, being water-logged, did not pitch so much as before and she was able to maintain her hold, although every wave that broke over her drenched her again and again.

She wondered why the boat did not sink and then she realized that the empty gasoline tanks which she had closed and locked, prevented the final catastrophe; that the boat was in a certain sense a life boat; that it would float so long as the water pressure did not succeed in opening the tanks. Therefore, she was for the moment safe. The only immediate danger would be the capsizing of the boat which would throw her out. Since the launch was already full of water the woman did not think this was likely to happen.

She held on, her vitality gradually growing weaker, hoping for the morning and an abatement of the storm. She had no idea of time, of course. She could not tell what the hour was. It was still dark, however, when a strange sound smote her ear. She heard it above the wild scream of the wind and the awful heat of the waves. It was a crashing sound, a battering sound, a fearful, potent sound. The boat ran forward more swiftly now. She wondered the reason. Taking advantage of a brief lull, she abandoned her grip on the thwart and rose to her knees. Immediately in front of her she saw a white wall disclosed to her by the lightning flashes. She did not know what it was. The roaring sound came from thence. She was being borne rapidly toward it. She was nearing it with astonishing swiftness. The boat was moving more quickly now than at any time since she had been in it. At last it broke upon her consciousness that the white wall was a mass of foam; that the sea was crashing against some hidden shore and that great breakers were there

The land that she had longed for indeed lay athwart her course. In another moment she would be in that mass of boiling foam. Well, she had fought a good fight. The end was at hand. With some instinct of the heroic, death would not find her lying down. Desperately she struggled to her feet and stood, balancing herself to the wild onward rush of the boat. The wall of foam was close at hand. For one second she threw out her arms and the next moment, with a crash which she could feel if not hear, the boat beneath her feet was lifted up and hurled on something fearfully solid. She was thrown through the air like a bolt from a catapult. A wave struck her in the back and beat her almost into insensibility. She was tossed and driven half unconscious over the space of shallow water and rolling on upon a sandy shore. Blindly she crawled on. The waves seemed suddenly to have lost their power. She did not know that she had been thrown past a barrier reef and carried over a lagoon and dropped on a sea beach; that only the most unusual and gigantic waves could reach her, but she knew that they had little power to harm her. And so she crept desperately and doggedly on until she fell forward in the warm sand and lapsed into absolute and total unconsciousness.

PICTURE SHOW

Walton's Opera House

EACH NIGHT

Grass Fair's Classification is Unique Among Works of Its Kind.

Lexington, Kentucky, is the center of the richest and most famous agricultural and live stock raising section of the United States if not of the world. The renowned Blue Grass Region has a reputation extending to many lands, and of the interests with which it is particularly concerned the Blue Grass Fair, which comes this year the week of August 8-13, is representative. Although in magnitude and importance fully on the basis of a State Fair, the Blue Grass Fair, which is responsible alone to the enterprise of its stockholders for organization and dependent upon the support of the people of Central Kentucky for maintenance, does not try to reach outside the particular products with which its section is concerned and in which its further advancement may in some measure be due. Always bearing in mind the slogan "a Kentucky fair for Kentucky products," it omits from its classification certain breeds of live stock for which most state fairs make provision. Such omission is intended in no sense of criticism. It is rather a course adopted after careful consideration for what is believed to be the best interest of Kentucky and particularly of this section.

The classification of the Blue Grass Fair, introduced in 1907 and since reaffirmed, is unique among works of its kind. No other fair ever succeeded in separating completely and entirely breeding and show classes in its horse departments. The former are provided for the three great American breeds, the only three with which Kentucky is in any sense concerned. The show classes are thrown open to the world, specifications of individuality being the only consideration taken into account. Competent judges have pronounced the horse show at the Blue Grass Fair the best in America. No where else can such a display of breeding stock be found, no where else do both saddle and harness rings fill so well or offer contests so stirring and satisfactory to the lover of the horse.

Burroughs' Little Nature Joke.

In his criticism on nature John Burroughs writes a series of humor as well as power to discover new facts. One day he was attracted by the sight of some little insects of earth which he had not previously seen. "I found a tiny lot of pollen here prepared for the sustenance of the grub when it should be hatched," he says. "It is prepared by the 'wilder suffragette' the female of the wolf spiders. I have named her this because she so far outranks the males of this variety. The latter are both small and of little account. But the suffragette does not last long. A few days more and she has been swallowed up by a greater—an enormous sand hornet."

Pristine Glory

AGAIN RESPLENDENT AT CRAB ORCHARD SPRINGS

Crab Orchard, July 28. The pristine glory of Crab Orchard Springs as the most popular summer and health resort of the South seems to have been fully regained if one is to accept as a criterion the size and appearance of the crowd of guests who are thronging this popular old watering place this summer. People are here from over the state and from scores of other states and still they are coming. Popular Col. J. B. Willis and his good wife are here all have the time of their lives at the springs and the old town is as merry as a marriage bell.

Mr. David Street accompanied by Mrs. George Stephenson, Mrs. Milton Estes and Mr. Joe Elam had a very narrow escape from being seriously hurt or killed when returning home from Stanford this week. The horse Mr. Street was driving became frightened when the shaft broke and fell on his foot, causing him to run and kick furiously. The front of the carriage was kicked away entirely and Mr. Street and Mr. Elam were painfully hurt though not severe. The ladies were uninjured, but for the very timely giving away of the other shaft all might have been killed.

Crab Orchard is full of visitors and boarders. The season at the springs is at its zenith and everybody is enjoying themselves to their hearts content.

Miss Gertrude Fields, of Deland, Fla., is with her aunt Mrs. Carroll Bailey and Miss Ophelia Lackey, Miss Martha Wallace Jones, of Kansas City, Mo., has also been their guest.

Mr. T. T. Lackey, of Litchfield, Ill., is the guest of his father, Hon. Gabe Lackey.

Rev. Donohoe, pastor of the Christian church will conduct a series of meetings at his church, beginning Sunday morning. He will be assisted by Rev. W. E. Anderson, of New Richmond, O., who will arrive Monday night and take charge of the services. Everyone is invited to attend these meetings.

Mrs. Wm. Mason Morris and bright little son, William Mason, Jr., of Muskogee, Okla. have arrived to spend the remainder of the summer with Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hoidam and other relatives.

Mrs. Rose Stewart Alexander is visiting her sister Mrs. F. L. Lyons. Mrs. Abe Addams, of Frankfort, is visiting her mother Mrs. Jane Buchanan.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Smith and baby, of London, have been guests of her grandmother Mrs. Martha Fish.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Carter, of Lebanon Junction, have returned home after a pleasant visit to their parents Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Gover.

Miss Tanna Thompson has returned accompanied by her grandmother Mrs. Wm. Poynter, of Mt. Vernon.

Mr. Bayne Culton who has been away for some time has returned to visit the homefolks.

Mrs. Sams and little daughter, of Hawesville, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Lyne.

Mrs. W. A. Carson and Miss Lottie, of Stanford, have been guests of the Misses Dedord. Mr. George Dehord and wife also have been recent visitors.

Mr. Will Brooks has returned and made glad the hearts of a number of little girls and boys by taking them to the Dripping Springs, for a days outing.

Mr. Burnie Fish and niece, Miss Stella Fish are visiting Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Carpenter, of Stanford.

Fish Reinhart is visiting friends in London.

Mrs. Belle Cashdollar and daughter Georgia, of Coffeyville, Kas., are at the bedside of her mother Mrs. Malvina Sigler who is suffering from a fall which dislocated one of her limbs and is in a very serious condition. Elmer Thompson is critically ill with typhoid fever.

Surprised Their Friends

MISS EADS AND MR. RANKIN ARE QUIETLY WEDDED.

Maple Grove, the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Eads, on the Danville pike was the scene of a very pretty marriage ceremony at 9 o'clock on the morning of Wednesday, July 27th, when Miss Sophronia Eads became the bride of Mr. A. I. Rankin, of Wayne county. The fact that the wedding was to occur had been kept rather secret and the many friends of the popular couple will be much surprised to learn of the happy affair.

The bride was beautiful being delicately attired in white. She was preceded by her little niece as flower girl and met at the altar by the groom, who is a young man of handsome and pleasing address and one of Wayne county's most substantial citizens.

A unique feature of the wedding, and quite a coincidence was that it was solemnized on the 27th anniversary of her father and mother's marriage; it being the same day, the same day of the month and the same hour.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. J. T. Hoskins, of the Stanford Baptist church, the happy left over the L. & N. for Cincinnati and other points. J. T. H.

Nervous

"I was very nervous," writes Mrs. Mollie Mirse, of Carrsville, Ky., "had palpitation of the heart, and was irregular. On the advice of Mrs. Hattie Cain I took 2 bottles of Cardui and it did me more good than any medicine I ever took. I am 44 years old and the change has not left me, but I am lots better since taking Cardui."

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Cardui is advertised and sold by its loving friends. The lady who advised Mrs. Mirse to take Cardui, had herself been cured of serious female trouble, by Cardui, so she knew what Cardui would do.

If Cardui cured Mrs. Cain and Mrs. Mirse, it surely will cure you too. Won't you try it? Please do.

A WILD RAGING BLIZZARD

brings danger, suffering—often death—to thousands, who take colds, coughs and la grippe—that terror of winter and spring. Its danger signals are "stuffed up" nostrils, lower part of nose sore, chills and fever, pain in back of head, and a throat-grinding cough. When Grip attacks, as you value your life, don't delay getting Dr. King's New Discovery. "One bottle cured me" writes A. L. Duan, of Pine Valley, Miss., "after being laid up three weeks with Grip." For sore lungs, hemorrhages, coughs, colds, whooping cough, bronchitis, asthma it's supreme. 50c, $1. Guaranteed by G. L. Penny.
